

A message from Frances Taylor
President, Alabama Federation of Republican Women

December 2013

As many of you know, (AFRW President) Elois Zeanah has been diagnosed with an aggressive form of lymphoma. She has already undergone one surgery, with another scheduled for tomorrow, December 10, after which she'll begin radiation. While her husband and family are by her side providing their love and support, we can do the same with cards, letters, and most of all, prayers. I will provide updates as frequently as possible without impeding on family and their caring for Elois.

The following is from Jim, her husband: She has faith that this is all a piece of a greater plan, not really comprehensible to mere humans, and the peace of her Christian faith sustains her.

Again, please keep Elois and her family in your prayers.

Take Care,
Frances Taylor

Update on January 3, 2014:

Elois was unable to receive the surgery on her leg as many of you know. She is now at DCH Hospital in Tuscaloosa getting her treatments. Her spirit is good, however her body is still weak. The doctors and family are hoping that she will regain enough strength to go home within the next week or so.

Elois loves the cards and letters from our membership - her husband reads those to her when they come in - so please keep them coming and encourage your members to do the same. As always, please keep her in your prayers.

Take Care,
Frances
